About Me Page

I am a student in the U.S. with a strong interest in both academics and extracurricular activities. I was born and raised in NYC, and I come from a Serbian, Irish, and Filipino background, which has helped shape my appreciation for different cultures. In my free time, I enjoy playing basketball and piano, which helps me stay disciplined and balanced. Academically, I am working on achieving the honor roll and continue to challenge myself in all my classes.

Outside of school, I am actively involved in Mock Trial, Model United Nations, and Debate. I aim to earn recognition in these areas- a witness award in Mock Trial, awards in Model UN, and success in debate tournaments.

Looking forward, I hope to gain valuable work experience through internships as well as potential career opportunities.

Resume

I have been at the Browning School for five years. Throughout the last two years, I have attended two college programs at Brown University for finance and the Wharton School for Entrepreneurship. I have also created an anti-procrastination tool through the University of Pennsylvania SIP Program. This tool focused on reducing procrastination through my participation in advanced academic coursework in numerous college classes. I have earned many awards in Mock Trial and have achieved Honor Roll and High Honor Roll numerous times throughout my years at the Browning School. In terms of school and sports, I play Basketball in some outside leagues and occasionally play at recitals for piano.

Skills

In terms of technical skills, I am learning programming and web development. I am slightly familiar with using digital tools for design and productivity. In terms of academic skills, I generally have strong reading and writing comprehension skills, and developing public speaking skills and research and critical thinking skills from competitions. I also have a strong willingness to improve myself through time management and goal setting. I am also seeking real-world work experience.
